

ASTROLOGY

Your October 2022 relationship horoscope is here

1 hour ago

SHARE

TWEET

Written by Patsy Bennett

Add this article to your list of favourites

Astrologist Patsy Bennett gives us a run down on what lies ahead this month when it comes to love and relationships.

ARIES

Both the sun and Venus travelling through your seventh house of love and partnerships until 23 October spell a good month for focusing on improving both your personal and business relationships, as your efforts are likely to succeed. Independence is a quality you're known for, and yet friendship, love and romance are just as important to you as they are to anyone else, and good relationships really do complete a rosy picture for you. So you'll be pleased to hear that October brings a wonderful opportunity to boost your relationships.

Developments will also make way for new relationships as you let some fall away, such as those that no longer resonate with you on a deeper level. March-born Aries will see developments in their personal life, most notably around the Aries full moon on the 9th, while April-born Aries will get the chance to turn a corner with key personal and business collaborations around the solar eclipse on the 25th. Eclipses are known to close a door at the same time as they open one, so be prepared for strong emotions to arise. You may receive key news from someone close that has a long-term impact.

TAURUS

The beginning of the month will be an excellent time to organise fun events and to enjoy socialising. Your plans for get-togethers and social events are best implemented earlier in the month if possible, especially if you realise that logistics and developments outside your control will require a flexible approach on your behalf. Meetings and talks with family and friends will be productive in October, so be sure to take the initiative and organise important discussions as these will be productive and could improve both business and personal relationships.

If communications are truly not at their best early in October, you'll find they will improve mid-month, so be patient if agreements you seek are not forthcoming. The full moon on the 9th will kick-start a fresh daily routine and encourage you to look for more balance in your usual schedule. And you'll be pleased to hear that you'll gain the chance to do just that in October. The solar eclipse on the 25th will mark a new phase in your partnerships and romantically if you were born around 25-26 April and, for all other Taureans, fresh daily and work routines will be an excellent time to schedule in more time to spend with the people you love.

GEMINI

The sun and Venus will boost your creativity, fun and romance quota for most of October and will fuel your need for these qualities in your life. And, if socialising leaves you exhausted, October will be a perfect time to re-establish balance and reconnect with family and those you truly love. This is the month to focus on peace and calm, as your efforts are likely to succeed. Underneath it all, you'll be searching for more meaning in your personal life, and especially in your domestic life. Mercury, the communications maestro of the universe, will help you to communicate so much better with those you love from mid-month onwards, so be sure to organise key events for then.

The partial solar eclipse on the 25th will supercharge opportunities to revitalise your personal life, especially with your family and in your love life. Be prepared to consider new avenues of expression within your existing relationships and also with new circles and friendships, and to choose your activities and circles carefully. If you're single, a door could open to a fresh relationship, so take the initiative! Couples will appreciate the chance to enjoy a more revitalised and passionate connection.

CANCER

This is a good month to invest in the people you love most in all areas: at home, at work and in your family and love life. The full moon on the 9th will spotlight activities and projects that truly resonate with you, enabling you to prioritise certain events and activities, especially regarding collaborations within groups, friendships and organisations. You may even be surprised by who emerges as the most important contender for your attention in October.

A trip or improved relationship will delight and you'll appreciate the sense that key relationships will flourish. This will spur you on to be more assertive within friendships and social circles. The solar eclipse on the 25th signals a new agreement with someone at home or with family, and the more prepared you are, the more you'll gain a sense of serenity and belonging, stability and security in your domestic life at the end of October. Beware of making far-reaching changes domestically without having thought these through, as you may be liable to make rash decisions and jump into projects without having carefully thought them through.

~~~~~

October will be a good month to invest in the people and the projects closest to your heart

~~~~~